

Highlights

- First GP hyper-heuristic for the job shop scheduling problem with interval durations
- Evolved rules beat every constructive baseline on all 70 interval Taillard instances
- Rules evolved on four 20×15 instances generalize zero-shot across sizes and families
- Interval widths pay under a robustness objective, not under expected makespan
- A genetic algorithm needs 76,000 schedules to match one pass of the evolved rule